Homeschooling: What is home schooling? Learn its advantages and disadvantages

What is Home schooling? Many parents have to change cities for work. On the other hand, school fees have also gone up and children have to rely on private tuition. This is when parents choose the option of homeschooling for their children. Through this, children are taught educational courses from home. That's when kids get rid of things like friends, games. If you think so, then let's understand the advantages and disadvantages of homeschooling.

Home schooling: In the last few years, the trend of homeschooling has increased a lot in the country and abroad. Covid's time and the sudden rise in inflation have led many parents to consider it appropriate to teach their children at home. However, giving children a home-like environment at home is not easy. For that, parents also have to work hard on their behalf.

Advantages & Disadvantages of Home schooling : If you want to teach children through homeschooling, you need to know everything related to it. In addition, you will have to change your schedule.

• What is home schooling?

Homeschooling means that parents take full responsibility for their children's schooling.

In homeschooling, parents teach their children at home and they can get help from books as well as videos and other things. If you choose homeschooling for your child, you may be able to get into the classroom based on his or her age. You also have to test it. On this basis, he will continue to move forward.

• What are the benefits of homeschooling?

There are many benefits to homeschooling. Learn about them - 1. During homeschooling, the child's skills can be identified and taught perfectly. You can create a schedule according to the activities of the children. 2. The child may be weak in one subject and good in another. By taking care of these things, parents can choose their teaching method. 3. Homeschooling is a great option for parents who have to change cities frequently due to their work. Your home is a children's school and there is no need to worry about re-entering the school in such a situation. 4. During home schooling, there is no peer pressure on children. They get a safe environment while studying at home. 5. Constant communication with children helps parents to understand the hidden talents in their children. This is a great way to save money on school fees.

• What are the disadvantages of home schooling?

1. Homeschooler usually does not come in contact with other children. This can lead to a lack of social skills in them. Such children are not easily matched in the group and are reluctant to express their views in front of others. 2. Parents have to work hard during homeschooling. In such a situation they have to devote all their time to the education of the child. In this situation it is difficult to balance the child's education and his personal and professional life. 3. Parents can be experts in some field. But they do not necessarily have a good grasp of every subject. This can make the child weak in some subjects. 4. During homeschooling, children are free to make friends, go on trips, be part of group activities or participate in sports. 5. Homeschooling is convenient only for parents who are working from home or not doing job / business.

Career in Aviation

TNE | Nashik

Career in Aviation

Industry : If you are thinking of pursuing a career in Aviation Industry after 12th standard, then you need to know many things. Making a career in the aviation industry is not easy, especially becoming a pilot. This requires good communication with the necessary knowledge and proper training. Here are 5 tips to help you pursue a great career as a pilot.

• Choose a good flight school : The most important thing is to choose the right ATP flight school to get into the air transport sector. Completing training in a good flight school will give you a new direction in your career.

Because if the school is good, you will get a whole network of training simulators there. Also here you will have the opportunity to meet the airline representatives and build your networking with them.

• Internship in a good company : Experience in this field is very important to start a career after completing a pilot course. For this you have to do an internship first. You can get the help of your superiors for a good internship or you can choose a good company by collecting the internship information of all the airlines from the internet. When choosing an internship, keep in mind what you want to do and your degree level.

• Watch out for job ads : Read the job

advertisement carefully before applying for any job. A recent survey found that candidates apply for job advertisements without reading them completely and are then fired for failing to meet the company's requirements. If the job advertisement says that it requires specific knowledge or skills that you do not have, avoid applying for the job.

• Must be a mentor : It is difficult to move forward without a mentor in the aviation industry. Commercial pilots who are already working here have the ability to help one or two of their subordinates to develop and grow skills. So if you want to make a career in aviation, first make a mentor and complete your training with him.

• Get Pilot Medical before training : In order to train a commercial pilot, it is necessary to obtain an initial class 1 medical. Keep this in mind when getting an airline transport pilot license. Don't spend any money on full-time training unless you are sure you are medically fit to fly. Because if you spend money and become medically unfit, all your money will be wasted.
